Report on Grade 12 'B' Educational Trip

"Understanding finance today prepares responsible citizens and future leaders for tomorrow."

National Public School, Kengeri organized an educational trip to Christ University on 17 June 2026 for the Grade XII Commerce students. The purpose of the visit was to provide students with financial literacy awareness and practical knowledge of finance, investments, and entrepreneurship.

The program began with a session on the basic concepts of finance. The students learnt about needs and wants, the importance of saving money, budgeting, and financial planning. The resource person explained these concepts through interactive discussions and objective questions, encouraging active participation from the students. The second session focused on entrepreneurship and marketing in which the students were given a product and were asked to create a brand name, tagline, identify the target customers, decide the selling price, and suggest promotional strategies. This activity enhanced their creativity, teamwork, and business thinking skills. The session concluded with a quiz and rapid-fire round, making learning both engaging and enjoyable. The third session concentrated on investment decisions and risk assessment. The students were presented with different companies and investment scenarios and were asked to decide where they would invest based on the associated risks and expected profits. The speakers also explained the differences between stocks and mutual funds. A debate was conducted to encourage critical thinking and discussion on investment choices. The students were taken on a guided tour of the Christ University campus, where they explored the university's facilities and academic environment. The fourth session focused on investments and financial markets. The resource person explained the differences between public and private companies, the procedures involved in investing, and the various types of financial markets. The students gained valuable insights into investment opportunities and market operations.

The program concluded with a photo session. Throughout the day, the students actively participated in all the activities and discussions. The educational trip was highly informative and helped students gain practical knowledge about finance, investments, budgeting, entrepreneurship, and financial decision-making. The students thoroughly enjoyed the experience and benefited greatly from the interactive learning opportunities provided by Christ University.
